The plans for the fund benefit which Sophie Tucker is arranging to give at the Hotel Claridge a week from next Saturday night have assumed such proportions that the affair is now more than certain to prove one of the most successful ever given for soldiers' smokes. Miss Tucker is chock full of enthusiasm and she is backing her enthusiasm with a degree of energy which spells nothing but triumph.

The singer is devoting virtually all her waking hours when off the stage to the preparations. She has sent personal letters to more than four hundred friends, outlining her plans for the party $300 as its half—but hope to do even better this week.

The sale is in progress every day from 3 till 10 o'clock, and at the evening session there is a musical programme contributed by patriotic artists. The demand for articles to replenish the rapidly decreasing stock of goods to be sold continues. The public is still invited to send white elephants—anything that can be turned into cash—and thus help two most worthy causes.
